What is the Speakers' Network?

ZEON

The Speakers' Network is NOT:

Speakers do NOT speak on behalf of SCHC.

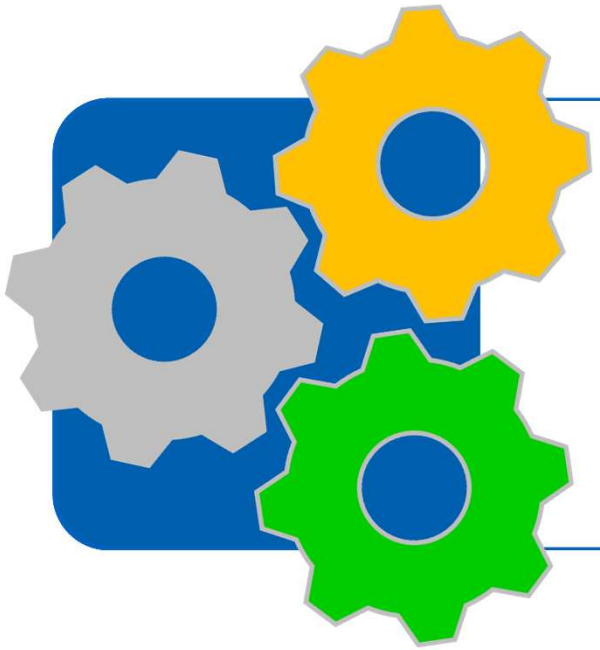

Speakers are NOT endorsed or vetted by SCHC.

Subject matter and presentations are NOT defined or limited by SCHC

So….what is the Speakers' Network

The Speakers' Network is an opportunity to volunteer in our local communities.

The Speakers' Network is a group of hazard communication subject matter experts dedicated to the accurate and effective communication of chemical hazards to improve the safe handling of chemicals for workers and the environment.

Speakers' Network Topics

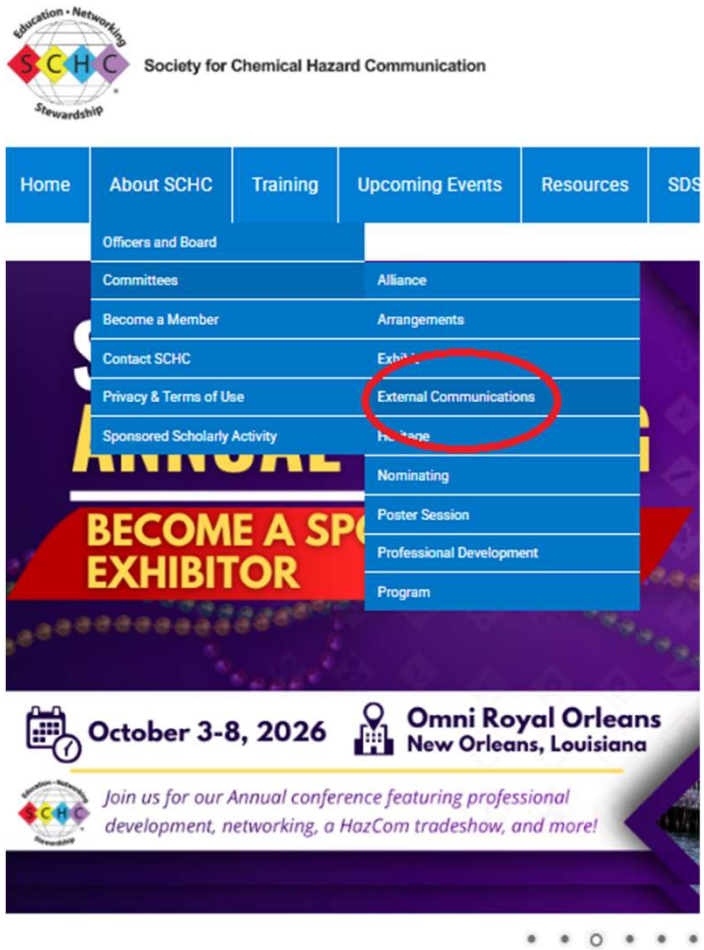

Often, the organization who requests the speaker also requests the specific HazCom-related topic:

- GHS
- Workplace labeling
- Labeling – consumer labels versus OSHA Hazard Communication labels
- Pesticide labeling versus OSHA Hazard Communication labeling
- Label elements
- Overview of the SDS 16-Section Format
- Written Hazard Communication Programs
- Employer requirements under the HCS
- Overview of the Hazard Communication Standard

Limited resources are available on the External Communications Website (schc.org)

It is EASY to Join the Speakers' Network (schc.org)

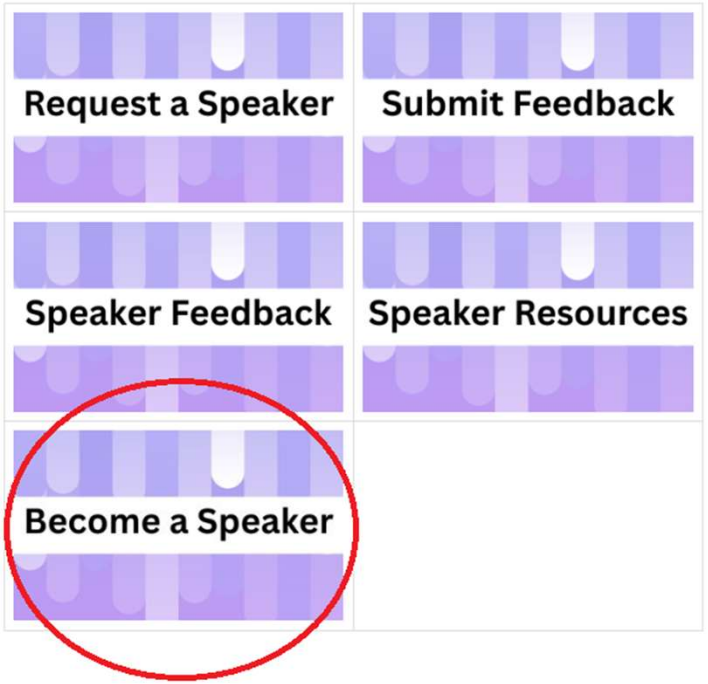

The professionals participating in the SCHC Speakers Network have volunteered to share their knowledge and expertise on the Global Harmonized System (GHS) with organizations within their local communities. This initiative is purely voluntary, and participants are not compensated by either SCHC or the requesting organizations. It is offered as a community service. Please note that SCHC has not vetted these speakers, and their inclusion in the network does not imply any recommendation or endorsement. It is the responsibility of the user to assess the suitability of a speaker for their specific needs.

This is not a consulting activity. Employers and others seeking consulting on the GHS for training or other purposes should refer to the SCHC Consultants Listing.
